PARTIES WAGE BATTLES OVER AIR HOOK-UPS

Jouett Shouse Opens Series of Speeches For Democrats Rapping Hoover.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Bearing in mind the "air-mindedness" of the nation, strategists of both the Republican and Democratic parties have turned to the radio for what promises to be the wordiest political campaign in history.

Between now and the November elections, which will determine whether President Hoover is going to continue his administration with the same safe Republican majority that started it, or whether the public is going to express its dissatisfaction by giving the democrats control of Congress radio fans are going to be treated to a continuous political debate. The leaders of both parties will take the air weekly for the next month and a half to expound the virtues of the policies for which they stand, and to refute the claims of the opposition.

Already a decided bitterness has been injected into the discussion. Party spokesmen are indulging in personalities. President Hoover is bearing the brunt of the attack from the Democratic side, while John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and Jouett Shouse, chairman of the latter party's executive committee, are withstanding most of the onslaught of the administration.

EACH MONDAY
Each Monday night, the National broadcasting company will alternate between a Republican and a Democratic appeal for support at the polls.

Jouett Shouse opened the series last night for the Democrats. He charged that although the President had promised poverty would be banished under his administration, "within nine months after Mr. Hoover became president we witnessed the amazing spectacle of soup kitchens and bread lines in practically every great city in this country, and a degree of unemployment and of distress that has not been known for more than thirty years."

WHITE ANSWER
Shouse's voice scarcely had faded from the air before the mimeographs of the Republican National Committee were humming and a statement in answer appeared under the name of Rep. John Q. Tilson of Conn., majority floor leader of the house. Tilson referred to the Democratic chief's speech as "an amazing collection of half truths, misstatements, abuse and criticism," and asserted the minority party was "literally gloating over the economic distress of this country" without offering any constructive remedy.

Other radio speeches and press releases of similar nature are in process of manufacture on both sides. Rep. Will R. Wood, Ind., chairman of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee, has delivered a personal blast against Democratic National Chairman Raskob, and there was every indication this would be answered in similar tone.

The administration is being attacked for the tariff, its firm and depression. Republicans are answering by saying the Hoover policies have been constructive and helpful whereas the Democrats have failed to suggest a cure for a single thing they have criticized.

BUSY WEEKS AHEAD
As matters shape up, James L. West and Charles Michaelson, publicity directors, respectively, for the Republican and Democratic parties, appear to be in for a busy six weeks with the public treated to a veritable welter of partisan propaganda.

SKAGGS RITES

Funeral services for Ellsworth Skaggs, aged 21, who died from suffocation at the Sturm-Dillard gravel washer at 4:30 a. m. Monday when he was covered by a slide of gravel, will be held Thursday at 2:30 p. m. at Union Mission, York-st., with Rev. E. S. Toensmeier officiating.

Burial, by the Albaugh Co., will be in Forest cemetery.

PROBE OF PEN FIRE IS QUIET

Newspapermen and Officials Promise To Keep Premature News Still.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 19.—The investigation into the origin of the fire at the Ohio State Penitentiary last April 21 which claimed 320 convict lives, will not receive any more "premature publicity" if a "gentlemen's agreement," made at a conference between newspaper reporters and Deputy State Fire Marshal Joseph Clear Monday afternoon, is kept.

Clear, who with State Fire Marshal Ray Gill, is conducting a probe into the catastrophe and who is attempting to definitely assign the blame for the major tragedy, said that the investigation had remained at a standstill since the news "leaked out" last Friday that two convicts had been removed from the penitentiary to the city jail here for questioning in connection with the fire.

"We have a mass of corroborative evidence to work on, but it will be some time before we will be able to disclose the results of the investigation," Gill told the newspapermen. "From now on the lid is on tight and will remain on until this thing is cleared up."

Though it is persistently rumored that a solution to the fire mystery is not far distant, Gill steadfastly maintained that neither of the two convict suspects had made any confession.

Lutherans To Enjoy Evening Of Fun, Sport

L. M. Mader is chairman of the lunch committee and will be assisted by Willis Henn, Charles Landenberger, Luther List, Carl C. Leist, M. J. Valentine, Robert Wolf, F. A. Cryder, Harry Barthelmas and John A. List.

ATLANTA YOUTHS SUFFER INJURIES

Carol Hughes and Oakley Turner, the latter valedictorian of the class of 1930 of the Atlanta high school sustained injuries Sunday evening near Clarksburg when their car went over an embankment.

Hughes, who is a star athlete of the Atlanta school, suffered injured shoulders and chest, while Turner was only slightly injured.

APPLY LOWER RAIL RATE IN DROUGHT AREA

County Farm Agent, H. S. Lewis, Explains Ways and Means of Getting Price

Under special authority of the Interstate Commerce Commission, dated August 9, 1930, railroads in the official classification territory have issued point tariffs providing for reduced rates for carload movements of designated commodities into, and livestock out of areas affected by drought. The rates will be applicable only to hay, feed, water and livestock. The territory covered by this classification is as follows: The United States north of the Ohio and Potomac rivers and east of the Mississippi river, except the northern Peninsula of Mich., the states of Wisconsin and Minnesota and that portion of the state of Illinois lying north or west of a line drawn from Chicago to East St. Louis.

Anyone in Pickaway-co desiring to obtain a permit authorizing the movement of the designated commodities must first obtain approval certificate from the County Agricultural Agent, H. S. Lewis. The local railroad agent, upon receipt of this application will transmit the same to the transportation officer of his railroad requesting permit for such movement. The permit must specify the commodity to be shipped, the quantity to be shipped, the shipping point, designation and name of consignee and consignor and the time limit in which the shipments are to move.

The County Agricultural agents in the designated drought counties are authorized by the Department of Agriculture to approve applications for reduced railroad rates on the designated commodities when the benefit of such reduced rates accrues to the farmer-consumer of hay, feed and water stock in the drought stricken area.

LAND CASE NEARS END

Condemnation Proceedings By State Against John Fry Being Heard in Court.

The jury case in probate court in which the state highway department has brought suit against John and Dell Fry Jackson-ty for land easement for highway purposes is expected to be finished today, according to Judge E. A. Brown who is hearing the case.

Eight of ten witnesses have testified for the defendants, and the plaintiffs witnesses were to have given testimony in the case this morning and afternoon.

The jury was completed yesterday, however, there are only 11 present time as Harry Stevenson, members sitting in the case at the a member of the jury, was taken suddenly ill last evening and by mutual agreement of counsel of both parties the case will be tried by nine men and two women.

BOY RUNS WAGON IN PATH OF CAR

John Holland, aged 9, S. Pickaway-st., suffered a bad cut in the head and bruises on his back when he ran in the path of a Dodge coupe driven by Miss Elizabeth Umsted, S. Court-st., in an alley off S. Pickaway - st., Monday about 4 p. m.

Holland along with several other children, were playing in the alley, and he, in a wagon, drove into the path of the Dodge. Miss Umsted stopped the car in time to prevent running over the lad, and therefore he escaped with minor scratches and bruises.

Miss Umsted took the lad to the office of Dr. H. C. Allen who gave him medical aid.

Turn Up Gangland Records

Pat Roche (right), chief investigator for the Cook County state's attorney, who discovered and seized the sensational Zuta documents which reveal political-gang rule secrets in Chicago, is shown here going over the vice lord's ledgers with Special Assistant State's Attorney Charles F. Rathbun. Roche traced gangland to get the records, and won.

Circleville Merchants' Dollar Day, With Many Bargains, is Thursday

Thursday, August 21, is the big day for everyone who visits Circleville and participates in the bargains being offered by Circleville merchants in their Annual Dollar Day. This is the one day of the year when every dollar spent will buy extra ordinary values.

In all of the stores in addition to the regular Dollar Day sales, there will be exceptional values to attract customers who may hesitate to investigate the merchandise displayed.

Every store participating in the Dollar Day Sale has merchandise from regular stock, that is seasonal and first quality and offered at special prices. Merchandise for the home, for every member of the family, warm weather needs and things too numerous to mention.

USEFUL BARGAINS

It will pay you to read each advertisement in this issue. Each tells of the special Dollar Day values and to miss reading an ad you may miss the opportunity of buying just the thing you have been wanting, and you can buy at a ridiculously low price. The merchants have made much preparation for this event and every store will have extra salespeople to take care of the big crowds that will be on hand early Thursday.

Many additional copies of this issue are being distributed and the county people will be here to vie with the city residents in getting the best bargains. It will be to your advantage to make a list of the things that you want to purchase on Thursday and your shopping trip will be easier.

The following merchants have special Dollar Day Ads in this issue. Read every one of them.

Nancy Brown Shoppe, Mack Shoe Store, Circleville Tire & Repair Co., Wilder Cash Store, H. B. Colwell, Fellers & Croce, J. M. Morris, Anton Gomer.

CADETS NOTICE

There will be no meeting of the American Air Cadets Thursday evening. The date of the next meeting will be announced.

NEW YORK TO FIGHT ACTIONS OF GANGSTERS

Racketeers Running Up Cost of Living In City, Many Ask Protection.

By James L. Kilgallen
NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—A new, high powered, organization of "racketeers"—operating mysteriously and ruthlessly—is running up the cost of living in New York City by conducting a campaign of terror against legitimate business. This sinister condition was revealed at the state attorney general's inquiry into food profiteering, which resumed its probe today with the promise of further startling disclosures.

"You've heard nothing yet, compared to the exposures that are coming," declared Assistant Attorney General William B. Groat, Jr., who has questioned two dozen witnesses who told stories of destruction of property by gangsters, extortion and even death threats. "We are on the trail of a ruthless gang of guerrillas who are waxing rich by profiteering at the city's expense, and we shall do our utmost to bring them before the bar of justice."

A picture of racket-ridden retail dealers in milk and eggs and intimidated independent truckmen has been portrayed by witnesses at the investigation which consists of two inquiries—a milk inquiry and a general food inquiry. One witness said "he had been told he would be 'bumped off' unless he changed his source of supply; another got a 'punch in the nose' when he refused to heed picketing truckmen and other truckmen who wouldn't 'conform' had the tires of their trucks slashed."

Armed police protection has already been asked in one instance, so ominous has the situation become. Groat said he had requested Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney to supply protection for the Utah Poultry Producers Association's offices in Greenwich Street. "We'll see that anybody who wants to buy eggs from this wholesaler can do so," said Groat. "No gangsters are going to stop them."

Several witnesses before the board of inquiry were loath to testify, fearing reprisals from the gang leaders and their "muscle men" who have been particularly active and greedy since the drought scare. It was disclosed that some of the old "milk ring" of racketeers, believed to have been broken up a year ago, are again "doing business" in their ruthless way.

The Utah Poultry Producers association has had much trouble with picketing truckmen. Threats of violence have been so numerous that Albertia Wilderson, assistant chief of the Salt Lake City office, came here recently to investigate.

Since the beginning of the probe, definite threats to "squeeze" have been passed among the food dealers of the city by the "price bandits." It was said that several witnesses nevertheless plan to identify the racketeer and officials of the state attorney general's office believe the big mysterious organization that has been threatening legitimate business will be exposed.

The steadily rising cost of eggs and milk is not justified by conditions, dealers said. While a shortage of eggs has been reported here, the fact is that such a surplus actually has been reported that eggs are being shipped from New York markets to the Pacific Coast for absorption.

TWO CLARKSBURG PERSONS INJURED

Ralph Stevens, Clarksburg, and Florence Bryant, suffered serious injuries late Saturday when the Ford sedan belonging to Stevens' employers, the Clarksburg Motor Sales Company, went off the edge of the road into a 10-foot ditch and turned over.

Miss Bryant, who was treated by Dr. Lightner in Kingston, suffered a long cut on the face which required 11 stitches to close together with bruises and other cuts. Stevens suffered a broken pelvis bone.

Scoffs at Crash

Mrs. Phoebe Omille, slightly injured when her plane nosedived to earth during practice landings at Memphis, Tenn., says the misfortune will not interfere with her participation in the National Air Races to be held in Chicago.

FRENCH READY TO FLY OCEAN

Costes and Partner and Three Others Await Favorable Weather For Trip.

PARIS, Aug. 19.—A double-act, the dangerous east-to-west Atlantic crossing was awaiting clear weather today for the first of the two impending hopfings for the United States.

Although the French air ministry denied the plan, it was learned that immediately after Dieudonne Costes' long delayed attempt to cross the Atlantic to America has been made, a trio of French naval fliers will soar off from Bordeaux with the Azores and later the United States as their goal.

Captain Costes and his companion, Maurice Bellonte, have been awaiting favorable weather for several weeks at Le Bourget field here for their trans-Atlantic flight, but disturbing atmospheric conditions over the Atlantic have held a restraining hand on the attempt.

Costes took his veteran plane, The Question Mark, aloft on a two-hour flight today primarily to test the radio equipment. After landing he said that further flights would not be made until the actual hop-off for America.

At Bordeaux Naval Lieutenant Paris and two companions are ready to follow Costes in their seaplane La Fregate, a type of machine similar to that in which the French mail pilot Jean Mermoz recently flew from Africa to South America. It has a 650-horsepower engine.

The French navy, it was understood, has ordered destroyers to patrol the course over which La Fregate will fly.

KINGSTON IS NOT TO CHANGE BOOKS

Village School Board Considers Need of Parents in Using Same Texts.

Kingston's village school board in consideration of the hard times this fall, have agreed to change no text books for students in the schools of that village until a later date.

At its last regular meeting the board of education voted unanimously to retain all text books now in use and not to make any changes.

The question of the change of school books for the coming school year in the schools of Ross-co. became a serious issue and in some school districts up until a few days ago was not definitely decided.

Kingston's school board should be given credit for considering the families of the pupils.

TIRE BREAKS TOSSING CAR OFF HIGHWAY

Jack Bruce, Columbus, Instantly Killed, Companion Uninjured In Crash.

Jack Bruce, aged 45, of 141 Hayden-ave, Columbus, was instantly killed and James Green of the same address, escaped injury at 7 p. m. Monday when the Buick touring car driven by Green skidded in the loose gravel on the Jackson-pk between the Williamsport and Darbyville pks and turned over into the ditch.

Bruce's death was caused by a broken neck. He also suffered a fractured right jaw and other injuries. Green, who left immediately after the accident, is thought not to have suffered any injuries although a few minutes after the wreck he disappeared.

The accident was thought to have happened when the left rear tire of the heavy Buick went flat, while the car was speeding north on the pike. The gravel at this point is comparatively loose and when the tire blew out the car was thrown over. It swung around and turned over into the ditch. When it stopped it was on its top facing south, the way it had come.

Bruce was found by passers-by lying under the car, badly crushed, and Green was also under the car but not injured.

The dead man was removed by O. C. Creighton of near Clarkburg, who passed the scene, shortly after the wreck occurred.

Under the Rader store at Fox Post-office was notified to call for help and Max Rader called the Albaugh Co., in this city. Coroner C. E. Bowers was then notified of the accident.

A large crowd had gathered when Deputy Sheriff Carl Porter arrived to direct traffic past the scene of the accident.

Coroner Bowers arrived and after conducting an investigation ordered the body moved and it was taken to the Albaugh Co. home, where it was called for and taken to Columbus.

The automobile, which was taken to the Clifton Auto Sales Garage, was badly damaged. The front end of the car was wrecked and the top was demolished.

The car had two sets of license plates, one set from Kentucky, numbered 282-092 attached to the car, and the others, Ohio plates numbered D37-694 inside the car. A Portsmouth city marker was carried on the front of the car.

Bruce leaves his widow, Mrs. Dorra Bruce; his mother, Mrs. Lygia Bruce, 179 Betts-ave; Columbus, a stepdaughter, Mrs. Eva Slagle, 141 N. Central-ave, Columbus; two brothers, John H. Bruce of the Betts-ave address, and James E. Bruce of Fostoria, and one sister, Mrs. Martha Smith, 550 Broderick-st.

He was an employee of the D. A. Ebinger Sanitary Manufacturing Co.

FAULTY FLU CAUSES FIRE

$50 Damage at Home of Mrs. Ellen Ward, N. Pickaway-st., Tuesday A. M.

Fire, which resulted from a bad flu in the chimney at the home of Mrs. Ellen Ward, N. Pickaway-st., did $50 damage about 9 a. m. Tuesday morning.

The fire department was called but before they were able to extinguish the blaze a great part of the shingle roof was burned.

Mrs. Ward had been burning paper in the furnace and portions of the burned paper went out on the roof and caught fire.

The home is insured by Boyle and Johnson.

The Ford coupe belonging to Ben Valentine, which was stolen from his residence on F. Frank-st. Saturday evening, was returned to his residence Monday.

The bicycle belonging to Howard Richardson, E. Franklin-st., which was stolen some time Sunday, was found in the downtown district by police officers Tuesday.

DOGGY WARD'S TEAM TAKES FINAL GAME FROM COKE 9

Ragged Support In Coca Cola Ranks Prove Downfall of Team When Ward's Tally 12 Times Against Four on Eight Errors and 13 Bingles On a Triple With the Sacks Loaded.

Doggy Ward's recreation ball team ended the recreation ball season Monday evening in a whirl of glory by defeating Frank Lynch's hapless Coca Cola outfit. The score was 12-4 and the fact that the game was the last of the season for the two outfits drew a large crowd at Utilities field.

After the first inning when each scored one run, the issue of the contest was never in doubt for Doggy's boys stepped out in the second frame to tally five runs, went farther in the third when two runners crossed the plate and counted one for good measure in the fourth, while the Coca Colas were blanked, largely on account of tight fielding.

The Cokes were shutout from the second session to the seventh when they chased two runners over the platter and scored their final marker in the eighth.

One reason that the Coca Colas didn't fair so well was the fact they had no regular moundsmen when the contest started. Brannon began on the mound but was jerked by Manager Lynch after he had walked two men in the opening session. Cuz Dumm went to the hillock, Styers was pulled from right field to second base and Brannon went to the garden. Dumm got along fairly well, although hit rather hard, his support which seemed at times not to care whether a ball was fielded or whether it was not, got him into trouble often, and bad throws combined with numerous fumbles kept in hot water that should never have occurred.

The Cokes scored 12 runs on 13 hits, one a triple by Buck Hutchinson with the sacks loaded, and eight errors, three by Smith and shortstop, three by Baucher at first base and two by Joe Barnes in the middle pasture.

The Lynchment carded only four hits off Geib, Ward pitcher, one of which was a triple to left by Sherm Barr. The ball would easily have been a home run for a fast base runner than Barr, but he was thrown out at the plate on a relay from Wilson to Hutchinson to Shorty Imier.

Three fast double plays helped cut down the Coca Cola scoring. One of the prize plays of the year was pulled by Brigham Thompson, Ward centerfielder, who raced nearly to the infield to pull a loop-off his shoe-strings and whip the pellet to first base to double a runner. Two other double plays were started by Buck Hutchinson with Butler on the finishing end of the play.

The Ward's finish the season in third place behind the Gordon, Tires and the Pettit-Sinclair's, and the Coca Colas finish one berth below the deputy's outfit.

DOCTORS PICK FLAWS IN BIG PRIZE FIGHTER

Walsh Says All That Is Needed Is For Medics To Condemn Big Carnera.

By Davis J. Walsh
NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—(Primo Carnera, I am informed today by medical specialists who have examined this walking box car of a man, is liable to have only another year, possible two, of normal health and strength before the seemingly inevitable overtakes him. And that, it seems, it is quite possible that he will first waste away to a mere hoghead and then decline physically to a point where he no longer will be able to fight, if, indeed, he doesn't become a daily subject for medical attention.

The doctors diagnosed him as a "pituitary" case, meaning that they believe the gland which regulates the nutrition of bone and other tissues doesn't function properly and won't. In brief, they think that Carnera, having grown abnormally, will now begin to deteriorate with proportionate haste.

"There is absolutely no truth in the report," said Carnera's No. 1 manager, Mr. Billy Duffy, today when confronted with the alleged facts.

But, after all, it is only a question of judgment between Mr. Duffy and the doctors, which naturally places the latter at a disadvantage. Mr. Duffy is his own authority, whereas all they have to depend upon is the science of medicine.

However, it is my understanding that the doctors plan to mask their real feelings and go on receiving patients in the regular way, meanwhile leaving Mr. Duffy to take care of his fighter's health. They realize, of course, that he will do what he can toward taking care of the fighter's money. If the man loses the former, for instance, the latter is no good to him and, if he hasn't the latter, the former isn't very important to anybody. It is all so complicated.

Anyhow, the doctors find what they term "indicatory evidence" of the alleged condition in Carnera's cheek bone formation, in the aspect of his nose and teeth and in the formation of his knuckles and they say that a specimen like this will last, after himself away into what the press says call a hollow shell.

CULLOP LEADS A. A. SLUGGERS

Breaks All-time Record For Association By Hitting 43rd Homer.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 19.—The American League may boast about its bambino, Babe Ruth. But today, fans of the American Association are pointing their finger with pride towards Nick Cullop, left fielder on the Minneapolis team, who yesterday broke the all-time record of the Association when he clouted out his 43rd homer of the season, against Toledo. The previous record was 42 and was made in 1921 by Bunny Brief, who was a member of the Kansas City Blues at that time.

Cullop's home came in the first innings of a slugfest contest, which Toledo lost, 14 to 10. An eight run rally in the seventh by the Millers put the game on ice.

Columbus shook up its lineup and threw a natural, when it defeated St. Paul in the final game of a series, 7 to 3. Percy Jones held the Apostles down with six hits. The Saints still occupy second place by a half-game margin, because the Mudhens failed in their battle with Minneapolis.

Louisville and Kansas City did not play on account of rain. However, the Colonels picked up a half-game due to the defeats of the runners-up.

Indianapolis bowed to the Milwaukee Brewers to the tune of 3 to 1. The Indians were helpless at the hands of Gearin, who allowed them only four singles, two of them being infield scratches. Burwell pitched good ball for Indianapolis and dueling Gearin throughout the game. A home run by Stanton with a mate on the paths in the first inning gave Gearin a two run lead, which he held like a Scotchman and carried through to victory.

HOLD RITES FOR JOHN W. ILES, 85

John W. Iles, aged 85, former hotel owner at South Bloomingville, died Thursday at the Hoeking home from heart trouble after a short illness. Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon at South Bloomingville.

He was the father of Ralph and Ida Iles, this city, and Harry Iles of South Bloomingville.

GIANTS FACE LAST CHANCE

Meet St. Louis Cards and Are Now Only One-half Game Behind Brooklyn.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Convinced that they are not just a good ball club but actually a championship winner, the New York Giants will attempt to tell the world about it today. They take on the St. Louis Cardinals and if the kayaved Robins continue to slide with the men of McGraw winning, the Giants will say their prayers tonight with striking distance of the league leading Cubs.

Paul Waner singled to start a ninth inning rally that finally climaxed in a double by Bartell bringing in two runs which bogged down the flock again as the Pirates won, 4 to 3. The dramatics came after Glenn Wright had homered in the final chukker for the Robins and it looked like a black-out for the Bucs.

Hack Wilson lumbered around the sacks after his homer number 42 as the Cubs swamped the Phils, 17 to 3. The Wilson blow came within one of tying the league record set last year by Chuck Klein of the Phillies. Woody English drew four walks, got one hit and scored five Bruin counters.

The monotonous Athletics continued on their way with George Barnshaw chalking his nineteenth win with the Brownies the 6-to-4 victims. Mickey Cochran's four-baser started a rally in the eighth that triumphed for the A's.

Hadley was guilty of only six hits and Washington hooked it, 5 to 4, from the Detroit Tigers. Myer, the Senators' keystone, recorded three hits.

Lou Gehrig's homer number 35 with two men on high-spotted the Yankees 11-to-4 success over the Chicago White Sox. Herb Penneck was the winning hurler. Other clubs did not play.

FARMER LOSES HIS BARN, IMPLEMENTS

Clarence Patrick, farmer living two miles east of Kingston, suffered the loss of all his farm equipment besides 500 bushels of wheat and 500 bushels of corn Sunday night when fire ignited in his barn burning it to the ground.

The family had been away and returned home about 9 p. m. to find the barn afire. No other buildings were endangered. Included an auto, all farm implements and tractor. The loss about one-third covered by insurance.

One thing we never expected of Lindbergh was that when he began to talk he would talk like a college professor.

Dollar Bill Says: 'Spend Me In Circleville and Save'

"MOST folks don't realize my ability to do great things," says Dollar Bill. "But of course I must have the co-operation of everyone in the community first. The more folks I can help the better I like it—and the better it is for the community. You see, I'm like most other folks—if I don't work, I'm useless—and when I do work I want to give full value for my service. That's why I like to stay in one community—first helping one and then passing on to the next one to do as much good as I can. That's what makes everyone a satisfied citizen—what makes a community grow. And from experience I find that I work the hardest and bring the greatest return when I am exchanged for goods in Circleville." Circleville Merchants have joined in having a Community Dollar Day Thursday and every time you spend me, you save part of me and get greater values.

BYRD AND THE POLAR EXPEDITIONS

CHAPTER XXIV

The Building of Little America, Byrd's Base for More than A Year.

It was a magnificent setting for the structure which Byrd now, in early January, 1929, began to rear, as a headquarters for the extraordinary tasks which were to engage himself and his men for more than a year. And in its way this structure was, if not as magnificent, certainly only a little less remarkable considering the conditions under which it came into existence. It was a great and complicated effort, involving scores of men, days of rigorous labor, and a wealth of material; and the important circumstance never to be forgotten is that all the material used—every stick, every nail, the smallest machine—had been transported thousands of miles, under conditions which had frustrated men who earlier had tried to work out similar plans. Not until Byrd came into the struggle was any one able to carry such a plan through to completion.

The main problem, naturally, was that of sheltering the men of the Antarctic party so that they might be able to carry out the scientific program which was, of course, the rock bottom reason for their presence in the distant, beautiful, but forbidding region. It was a problem which involved health and comfort too, up to a point at least; but above all it was a problem which depended for its solution upon speed. Painfully difficult though it was to work in the bitter temperatures of Antarctica it was necessary that no time be lost. Once Byrd had moved with slow observance back from the edge of the ice cliff to a spot where he felt able to say, "Start here!" work had to go forward at a gait no less rapid than it would have gone on a summer day back in the States. Everything had to be finished before the winter solstice set in with the long months of darkness.

No delay was permitted, and in an incredibly short time there was set up, upon the rough level of the Ross Field, such a village as never before had been seen below the Antarctic circle, the largest, and the most nearly complete and best equipped community that ever had been built in the Polar regions. The completeness of the community is a point to be stressed, because Byrd had emphasized it from the very beginning. That had been his thought even back in 1927 when the whole project had only begun to take shape in his mind. His expedition, he said then, was to be (and it was) the first of its kind able to rescue itself if rescue became necessary. No such catastrophe should overtake his party as had overtaken Umberto Nobile, the Italian explorer, who lost so many men after his dirigible was wrecked on its flight into the Far North.

The final result of the Commander's resolution back in 1927 was this, that in 1929, although his expedition was 2,300 miles from any civilization, and although he was for months so situated that no relief force could get to him, he was at all times in a position to send relief to any of his men who came to grief. This, the Little America built upon the Ross Ice Shelf made possible.

Little America, broadly speaking, was made up of three clusters of buildings set within a circle rather more than a thousand feet in diameter. The circle was far enough back from the edge of the cliff to guarantee that no segment of it ever would slide off into the sea while the men of the expedition worked, or worse, slept. It was near enough to the edge to provide for the shortest possible haul of extra provisions which the City of New York would bring from time to time.

The City of New York, while the Little America colony set about constructing their quarters and workshop, had faced about and started back for Dunedin. It was part of the program that the ship should make two more round trips from New Zealand to the Ross Field with the extra provisions which the ice party would need during the severe winter, when it would be impossible for the stoutest ice-breaking ship to drive through the impassable winter pack.

This is primarily a narrative of Commander Byrd and of what he and his men did in the tiny community they set up at the edge of the South Polar Plateau, about 800 miles from the Pole, but it would be far too incomplete if no mention were made of the labors and sacrifice of the other men of the expedition whose rigorous efforts aboard the City of New York made the accomplishments of the main party possible. The struggles of these men reached a climax on the second voyage back from the Ross Sea. Months later, landing ahead of the Main Byrd party at San Francisco, Lieutenant Harry Adams described the heart-breaking fight which the scanty ship's crew waged on the occasion against hurricanes, mountainous waves and sleet.

The run down from New Zealand had been difficult. Winter was in the offing and the temperature fell steadily; and since winter in the Antarctic means also storms of such intensity as are unknown elsewhere, a mad sea was added to the terrific cold. The run back north, however, was immeasurably worse. In a few weeks that had elapsed since the start from Dunedin, winter had come in its full fury.

On the very day that the City of New York turned away from the Bay of Whales she had to break through floes which had already begun to freeze together in great mile-wide barriers. Almost overnight, these threatened such a disaster as had overtaken Sir Ernest Shackleton in the Weddell sea fifteen years earlier. Shackleton's description of the freeze-in which eventually resulted in the loss of his ship, is a virtually perfect account of such a calamity. Except for its disastrous conclusion it is, too, a virtually accurate account of what befell the City of New York in her northward struggle. The story is told in South, the remarkable narrative of Polar adventure which Sir Ernest Shackleton published in 1920. The expedition was completed in 1915, but the book was delayed by the World War.

"When the way was barred by a floe of moderate thickness we would drive the ship at half speed against it, stopping the engines just before the impact. (The City of New York carried an auxiliary engine as well as sails.) At the first blow the Endurance (Shackleton's ship) would cut a V-shaped nick in the face of the floe, the slope of her cutwater often causing her bows to rise till nearly out of the water, when she would slide backwards, rolling slightly. Watching carefully that loose lumps of ice did not damage the propeller we would back off two or three hundred yards. She would then be driven full speed against the V, taking care to hit the center accurately. At about the fourth attempt, if it was to succeed at all, the floe would yield. A black sinuous line, as though pen drawn upon white paper, would appear ahead, broadening as the eye traced it back to the ship. Presently it would be broad enough to receive her and we would forge ahead. In this way the Endurance would split a two or three-foot floe a square mile in extent."

How the men aboard the City of New York must have watched for that "black sinuous line," which told them they were able to go a little farther! How apprehensive they must have been when it failed to appear according to expectation! For its absence was a threat that, like Shackleton's party, might be compelled to stand by and watch the floes crush their ship when the warming winds of summer broke them apart and the wild winds tossed the fragments one upon another.

"The roar of pressure could be heard all around us," Shackleton wrote in describing the destruction of the Endurance, a destruction which the City of New York narrowly missed. "And I could see, as the day wore on, that the lines of major disturbance were drawing nearer the ship. . . I could hear the creaking and groaning of her timbers, the pistol-like cracks that told of the starting of a trenail or plank, and the faint, indefinable whisper of distress."

"At seven P. M. a very heavy pressure developed with twisting strains that racked the ship fore and aft. The butts of planking were opened four and five inches on the starboard side, and at the same time we could see from the bridge that the ship was bending like a bow under titanic pressure. Millions of tons of ice pressed inexorably up the little ship that had dared to challenge the Antarctic."

"A strange occurrence was the sudden appearance of eight emperor penguins from a crack a hundred yards away at the moment when the pressure upon the ship was at its climax. They walked a little way towards us, halted, and after a few ordinary calls proceeded to utter weird cries that sounded like a dirge. . . If it was a dirge that those penguins sang, it was fitting music, for in those moments the Endurance was irrevocably broken, though the final crumbling of the small challenger of the Far South delayed for a few hours. Of that denouement, Shackleton wrote:

"The ship was hove stern up by the pressure, and the driving floe, moving laterally across the stern, split the rudder and tore out the rudder post and stern post. Then, while we watched, the ice loosened Endurance sank a little. The decks were breaking upwards and the water was pouring in below. The twisting, grinding floes were working their will at last with the ship. It was a sickening sensation to feel the decks breaking up under one's feet, the great beams bending and then snapping with a noise like heavy gunfire."

"The water was overmastering the pumps, and so to avoid an explosion when it reached the boilers I had to give orders for the fires to be drawn and the steam let down. The plans for abandoning the ship had been made well in advance and men and dogs descended to the floe and made their way to an unbroken portion of the ice without a hitch. Just before leaving I looked down the engine room skylight as I stood on the quivering deck and saw the engines dropping sideways as the stays and bed-plates gave way. I cannot describe the impression of relentless destruction that was forced upon me as I looked down and around. That floe with the force of millions of tons of moving ice behind was simply annihilating the ship."

HENRY-METZGAR REUNION SUNDAY

On Sunday, August 17, a large number of relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Schleick of near Williamsport to celebrate the 12th annual reunion of the Henry-Metzgar families. It was an ideal day for such an affair. At the noon hour a bountiful dinner was spread on long tables upon the shady lawn.

Late in the afternoon a business meeting was held reelecting the same officers for the ensuing year. A standing vote of thanks was extended to Mr. and Mrs. Schleick for their hospitality.

After the serving of ice-cream and cake, everyone departed for their homes planning to meet in 1931 with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Liston of the Scioto Trail.

OBITUARY

-IN MEMORIAM-

Eleazor Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Thompson, born June 8, 1961 in Scioto Township, died at his home in Pickaway Township Aug. 2, 1930, aged 69 years, 1 month and 10 days.

He was united in marriage to Fanny M. Hoover July 22, 1885. To this union were born five children two having died in infancy. The remaining children are Mrs. Susan Hall, Jesse and Ale Thompson Jr, all of Circleville. Besides his wife he leaves to mourn his loss six grandchildren, also one brother, Thomas Thompson of Columbus and one sister Mrs. Mollie Turner of Ashville.

He was a kind and loving husband and father always looking after the interest and welfare of his children, and was especially fond of his grand children.

"Dad" as he was better known always looked on the bright side of everything and had a smile for every one.

He will be sadly missed in the home and the community.

"With patience he suffered His troubles were sore, But now they are ended He suffers no more.

We lay him down On the quiet to rest His parting is painful But God knows best."

The family takes this opportunity to express their sincerest thanks for the kindness and sympathy of friends and neighbors in their recent bereavement. Mrs. Ale Thompson and family.

About the only remnant of the old definition of a hick town is one which imported school teachers enter chanting, "All hope abandoned see who enter here."-Port Worth Record-Telegram.

Early Prejudice

In the 1870s three women applied to be examined by the college of surgeons in England to study for medicine. Rather than give them examinations, the whole board of examiners resigned.

Theatres

AT THE METROPOLITAN

A new and mighty era in eye-ear entertainment opened for local play-lovers when Radio Pictures presented its lavish spectacle of music, drama and color, "Rio Rita" on the screen of the Metropolitan theatre.

Without a doubt this audifilm version of the famous Ziegfeld musical success is destined to write a new and glowing page in the history of the screen. Prolonged applause gave the verdict of the fans, the real critics.

Not only is it laden with beauty color, mystery, intrigue, drama and action, but it serves to introduce Bebe Daniels to the screen as possessor of a voice that promises to take her far in the new screen medium—talking and singing pictures.

Now For Everyone

As a picture "Rio Rita" should fire the world with enthusiasm even greater than did the Ziegfeld stage production in its 62 weeks in New York, Harry Tierney's music that set the world a-humming will live anew now that it can be heard by infinitely larger audiences.

AT THE GRAND

Time hangs heavy on Rudy Vallee's hands.

After he went to Hollywood to star in Radio Pictures' extravagant musical production, "The Vagabond Lover," now at the Grand theatre, he had nothing to do except work every day and many nights in the picture; keep up a fast social pace, fill many requests from theatres, night clubs, and civic affairs!

So he decided to write a book, a story of Rudy Vallee's life! Did he not have that "in between scenes" time—invaluable to a busy man?

For many months a well-known publishing house in New York had urged him to write his autobiography—and the trip to Hollywood gave him his opportunity.

AT THE CLIFTONA

If you were caught in the toils of the law, were hauled before a judge, tried for a crime you didn't commit, convicted of murder, and sentenced to prison for life, you would know the real thrilling drama of William Powell's newest starring picture, "Shadow of the Law," which will show at the Cliftona theatre, for two days, starting Wednesday next.

But the drama of the story only begins with prison. The most breath-taking action begins with Powell's escape from the penitentiary; his fight to prove his innocence; a seemingly hopeless search for the woman in whose hands lies the proof of his story; his love-affair with a daughter of wealth, and his final happiness.

William Powell has never had such a powerful and thoroughly sympathetic character to portray on the screen. The young engineer of this story is a believable character caught in a net of circumstances which might happen to anyone. Even "Street of Chance," Powell's first starring picture, lacked the dramatic force of "Shadow of the Law."

A great cast supports Powell. Natalie Moorehead, the blond beauty seen opposite the star in "The Benson Murder Case," is one of the two women who bring powerful forces to play in his life. Marion Shilling, young, beautiful American stage actress, is the other. Regis Toomey, is in the cast, and a group of well known and effective character actors add vitality to the story.

We think it was a pretty mean burglar who got into a policeman's house and took $38 and a revolver.

If you permit yourself to be bumped off the chances are some day you will be "bumped off."

THAT BIG LUCKY DEUCE
Right off the bat—we take a very firm stand on superstitions. We can take them or leave them alone. For example, we would never dream of looking over our left shoulder at a new moon while stumbling over a black cat and breaking a mirror. Not by a long shot.

But when anyone begins to tell us about the bad luck associated with a two dollar bill, we start laughing out loud right up the nearest sleeve. A $2.00 bill unlucky?

Ask Paul Rankin, Francis McCollister, or Mrs. Will Compton. Go ahead, ask all of them. Ask them around December 1st.

They'll tell you that $2.00 bill they pushed our way as they signed up for their Heatrola and Free Coal was the luckiest bill they ever had.

When you stop to think that two dollars will start you on the way to genuine heating comfort with a genuine Estate Heatrola; when you stop to think that your promptness in ordering now will insure you of a big supply of Free Coal, when you stop to think of our generous terms on the balance—just how much luckier are you going to derive yourself and family of the wonderful once-a-year Free Coal offer.

There are two Heatrola Junior models, too. For the small home, the duplex or cottage. And chips off the old block they perform in the same satisfactory manner as the model 6-D, circulating most warm air throughout every room—upstairs and down.

Above all don't forget that the Heatrola is the only heater with the Intensi-Fire Air Duct—that exclusive device which captures and utilizes most of the heat which in ordinary heaters escapes up the chimney. Result: About 45% saved in fuel bills. Get the inside fact before you buy an imitation. And get them soon as our Free Coal offer ends August 30th.

persons do not drop into the store to inquire "Where's the express office?"

Edna—Did I tell you how Roy and I sat down on the newly painted bench?

Dotthe—No; what happened?

Edna—Well, Roy ruined his pants.

And speaking of the express office reminds us that it is managed by Mr. and Mrs. Elmer E. Smith, both of whom are hard-working, and efficient. The only thing we can hold against Mr. Smith is that he places the RTT above the "funnies" when it comes to comics. That's alright, Mr. S., we want you to read our paper first; it is better than the "funnies." Well, at any rate, the Smith home was Heatrola heated last winter.

There are thousands of ways one may get into trouble, but talking too little is not one of them.

It's a far cry yet—we'll admit—to Fall house-cleaning, but may we remind you that one way to make that troublesome task easy is to use a Bee Vac Cleaner? Phone for your free trial now.

Summer, Fall, Winter or Spring our store is headquarters for all sorts of home furnishings. Right now we have some grand bargains in porch furniture. It's all grade A quality and the only reason for the price cut is to make room for fall merchandise.

Be sure to tune in on Honey Adams and her Heatrolatown friends Friday 9:30 P. M. (E. S. T.) from WLW. They are going to sing and play new songs in the kind of way that makes their listeners come back for more.

one day last week and told him that the MONARCH coal range, which we sold to her on Dec. 15, 1928, was as good as new. She said that the top, including the lids, were as level as the day the range was set. We are quite sure that if any one should ask Mrs. Brown if she could recommend a MONARCH coal range, that she would advise them that they could not buy a better one, and we agree with her. More malleable iron is used in constructing the MONARCH than is used in any other coal range.

Mrs. Claude Boyer, Ashville, was pleasantly surprised last Wednesday by her husband and daughter. It was her birthday (we did not ask her which one—it was none of our business) and her husband had us deliver a 1930 model Estate Gas Range, with insulated oven and all the trimmings, all enameled in Ivory and trimmed in Green as a surprise to her. After we had completed the installation of the range, her daughter prepared a birthday dinner for her. It was our privilege to be present when Mrs. Boyer came home. In fact, she caught us setting the range. You should have seen her. She stood amazed and dumbfounded. Honestly, one could have knocked her eye-balls off with a ball bat. Well we're glad that she was pleased and hope that she may have many more happy birthdays.

Just received—a shipment of foot-stools in assorted coverings. For quick turn-over we're willing to take $1.29 cash for your choice of them. They're really worth $1.75. If you're looking for something to rest your "legs" upon, drop in and get one or more.

Ralph White's Parafax tank is still doing business at the White home. This is the end of the SEVENTEENTH week. The cost per meal has been reduced to only .092, while the cost per week is only $23. We are hoping that the tank will last until August 23rd at least. Will it? And all of this time, Mrs. White has been cooking with the same ease and convenience that is enjoyed by those that have natural gas. Any one, anywhere, may have the use of gas. Ask us to explain more fully.

JUDGES VOTE ON PRESS HALL FAME

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 18.—The names of 12 Ohio Editors of other days are being voted upon by the 60 judges for places in the Ohio Journalism Hall of Fame, sponsored by the school of journalism, Ohio State University. The nominees for the 1930 election include four new names and eight others proposed a year ago.

The new nominees include the late President Warren G. Harding, for 38 years identified with the Marion Star; James W. Faulkner (1864-1923), for 3 years editor and political writer for the Cincinnati Enquirer; Edwin Cowles (1825-1896), editor and publisher of the Cleveland Leader, 1853; and E. W. Scripps, (1854-1926), founder (1878) of the Cleveland News, and publisher (1883) of the Cincinnati Post and other papers bearing his name.

The eight nominated a year ago who are still eligible for election include:

Nathaniel Willis (1755-1831), once editor of the Scioto Gazette; Donn Platt, (1818-1891), lawyer, judge, soldier, diplomat, noted Washington political writer; Benjamin Lundy (1789-1839), publisher of the Genius of Universal Emancipation and noted Ohio anti-slavery agitator; John Saxton (1792-1871), founder of the Star-ko (now the Canton) Repository; William Henry Smith (1833-1896), state official, Ohio editor, manager of the Chicago and later of the New York Associated Press; John W. Browne (1754-1813), early Ohio editor and member of the state's first constitutional convention; James M. Comley (1832-1887), editor (1865) of Ohio State Journal, minister to Hawaii and later chief owner and editor of the Toledo Commercial and William Henry Hunter (1852-1906), successively of the Cadiz Sentinel, Stuebenville Gazette and Chillicothe News-Advertiser.

The Hall of Fame was established in 1928. Eight leading early Ohio journalists were chosen the first year and four last year. Their pictures are hung in a permanent collection in the school of journalism on the campus.

FARMER ADMIRES HIGH EDUCATION

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 18.—Whatever else happens to him, the Ohio farmer clings to his belief in higher education. For in the student body of 14,495 at the Ohio State University during 1929-1930, students from farm homes outnumbered the second largest group nearly 3 to 1.

In the total enrollment, 1706 students gave "farmers" or ranchers" as the parental occupation. Children of merchants, the next largest group, numbered 666. Nearly 125 different occupations were listed.

Sons and daughters of bankers, brokers and other traditionally well-to-do classes were in the relative minority.

There were many more students from humbler homes, the annual census, prepared by Miss Edith D. Cocknls, registrar, showed.

In the cases of 2482 students, the parent was deceased or none was named while 1248 others gave their mother as the parent. The parents of 517 others were given as retired.

Parents in rare and relatively unusual occupations included one aviator, three professional baseball players, five golf pros, two inventors, and two scientists. The parents of one student were also students.

Following farmers and merchant, the most numerous groups were: salesmen, 529; business executives, 523; government, state brokers and other traditionally way employees, 407; contractors and builders, 335; school officials, 313; accountants, clerks and bookkeepers, 305; and physicians, surgeons and nurses, 270.

CROP VALUES

Based on available yields for the last nine years and the average price of grains during the first six months of 1930, the average value of an acre of Wheat is $17.38; Oats, $14.85, and of Rye, $12.68.
